

Case Study

Using Analytics to Improve Sales Through Service

The Problem

- Operational teams' reluctance to move from a service culture to more of a sales-through-service operational model
- Opportunities to upsell being missed
- Need to increase revenues generated through the contact centre

The Solution

- Analysed a large sample of calls to identify if there was a potential sales opportunity
- Created an automated 'sales pitch' agent scorecard to track if a sales opportunity was identified and acted on by the agent
- Redesigned existing training content on objection handling and rolled out across the operation
- Coached agents on the right behaviours to demonstrate when a sales opportunity presented itself

The Results

From the sample of calls, we tracked whether the agent made a sale and found a sales conversion of 43%.

From missed opportunities and better call management, we set a target to improve sales conversion to 60% within a 12-week period.

This was to be achieved with a combination of enhancing the analytics to get even more accurate results, introducing the agent KPI and coaching individual agents on specific areas to improve.

Return on Investment

Additional revenues of £100k delivered over the 12-week period.
